

Kansas City Is Getting Ready for the World Stage

There's something special happening around Kansas City right now.

You can feel it driving through downtown, walking through the Crossroads, or even just stopping for coffee on the way to work. Little by little, the city is starting to look like a true World Cup venue. Flags are appearing. Signs are going up. Conversations are turning toward soccer, visitors, and the once-in-a-generation opportunity ahead of us.

At McDowell Rice, we're excited to be part of it.

Kansas City has always been a city that shows up when the spotlight arrives, and the World Cup will be no different. From local businesses and restaurants to hotels, transportation crews, volunteers, and organizations throughout the metro, everyone seems to be preparing in their own way for the energy and excitement the tournament will bring.

We're already seeing the spirit build across the metro area, and we hope that excitement continues to spread. Whether you're a lifelong soccer fan or just excited to see Kansas City shine on the world stage, this is a moment the entire community can rally around.

The countdown has begun, and Kansas City is starting to look ready.

McDowell Rice is proud to be part of welcoming the world to Kansas City.
