

McDowell Rice Gets RadioActive

McDowell Rice attorney Scott Long and his wife, Heather, recently attended RadioActive 2026, KCUR's premier fundraising event supporting independent, nonprofit journalism in the Kansas City region. This year's featured guest was Katherine Maher, President and CEO of NPR, who shared insights on the future of public media and the vital role trusted journalism plays in our communities.

McDowell Rice is proud to be among KCUR's longest-standing and most valued supporters, helping sustain the local reporting and public service programming that inform, educate, and connect listeners throughout the Kansas City area.

We are honored to support organizations like KCUR that strengthen civic engagement, foster informed communities, and promote meaningful public discourse.
